By CERY AND SAND

Re-reading John Gunther's Inside USA, I ran across another good reason why newspaper writing shouldn't appear between book covers. In one section, where he praises California because it is more literary than Texas, Mr. Gunther states blandly that the University of California doesn't have regent trouble. That's how time mistreats timeliness...

This isn't giving away a secret, but did you hear what Cy Johnson is giving Elizabeth for a wedding present? A canary yellow, special Ford convertible, with natural pig-skin upholstery...

As the Girl Scouts' annual cookie sale ends tomorrow, the public is urged to respond to the door-to-door sales by buying cookies and supporting local Girl Scout activities. The cookie booth at the Carmel Post Office is available to persons who have not been called upon at their homes.

With all these big golf tournaments around here, we tend to forget the boys on the Carmel High School Golf team, who dumped the Salinas High School squad 9½ to 5½ in a recent match. Jim Hare was the pacemaker with a one-under-par 71 over the Salinas Country Club course. Other members of the victorious Padre team are Kurt von Meier, Ted Brand, Sonny Schull and Henry Overin.

After the results of the recent Carmel advisory question vote, Mr. and Mrs. Harold P. Brown must not have been surprised last Wednesday when the Carmel Planning Commission turned down, for once and all, their request to change "Stone House" from residential to commercial zoning.

At least, no one else was surprised.

194 Petition Carmel Council

Parents of Carmel Woods School children, worried for the safety of youngsters who must cross Camino Del Monte on the way to school, got help from an unexpected quarter Wednesday night at the Carmel City Council meeting. One hundred and ninety-four business people from north of Ocean Avenue presented the council with a petition asking that directions signs on Highway 1 be replaced to direct traffic down Camino Del Monte into Carmel.

At the same time, they suggested that school crossings be converted into underpasses for children, or that some safe means of

NO CORN IN "CORN"

With the rising of the curtain promptly at 8:30 to the accompaniment of Philip Oberg's pleasant baritone voice, "The Corn is Green" got off to an excellent start, at the Sunset Auditorium last Friday night. To those familiar with past productions of the Forest Theater Guild, the matter of a smoothly presented opening night may have occasioned no surprise. But to this reviewer, who was attending his first dramatic presentation in Carmel, the whole performance was highly pleasing and, to be perfectly honest, completely unexpected. Few opening nights go off so well.

Legion To Honor Carmel's Gordon Bain In Plaza Memorial Ceremonies

By Bill Martin

Memorial Day ceremonies this year in Carmel's Devendorf Plaza will feature special commemorative services for Gordon Bain, the first Carmel man to be killed in World War II. On successive years, the names of other Carmel war dead will be revered at the stone monument in the local park, according to Admiral Richmond Kelly Turner, USN (ret.), a member of the Carmel American Legion executive board, who will be master of ceremonies for the May 30 services.

Mr. Bain's sister, Linda, Carmel High School student, will lay a wreath at the war dead monument, escorted by her father, Miles Bain, and James Kelsey, Carmel Legion Post commander.

The Memorial Day exercises will start at 10:30 a.m. with special music on a public address system in the plaza. The Reverend Alfred B. Seccombe, of All Saints' Church, will give the opening prayer, and Commander B. McDonald, chaplain of the Navy General Line School, will render the benediction. Taking part in the ceremonies will be the Carmel Legion, Boy Scouts, a firing detail from Fort Ord and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion Post.

Gordon Bain, born in Seattle in 1918 and a resident of Carmel in 1926, was one of the first American boys to enter World War II, joining the Royal Air Force in August of 1941.

Young Bain attended Sunset School in Carmel and graduated in 1936 from Monterey Union High School, where he was student body president and a track and football star. He belonged to Carmel Boy Scouts and was the first president of the original Carmel Boys Club; also a member of the National Rifle Association.

Upon graduating from an engineering course at Salinas Junior College in 1939, he took private flying lessons, and on the following year he signed up for military flight training with the British Commission at Bakersfield.

As a pilot officer with the Royal Air Force, Mr. Bain drew the toughest flight duty in the Coastal Command, flying in the soupy weather of Northern Scotland on air-sea patrol missions.

His many Carmel friends and his family were notified that he was killed in an air crash in the early morning hours of April 23, 1942, shortly after the United States entered the war. Fittingly, his sacrifice will be the first to be commemorated individually in Carmel Memorial Day ceremonies.

His name, inscribed on stone in the Carmel plaza, is linked thousands of miles to his grave in the town of Wick, Scotland.

ANNOUNCE BACH FESTIVAL ARTISTS

Announcement of the artist roster of the Thirteenth Annual Bach Festival in Carmel was made this week by Denny Watrous Management. Gastone Usigli, distinguished conductor, will again lead the festival soloists, chorus and orchestra in the bi-centennial festival of Johann Sebastian Bach, which is scheduled for July 16-23.

Phyllis Moffet will return as leading soprano for the B Minor Mass, and engaged for the solo soprano of the St. John Passion is the well known Olive Mae Beach. Bruno Walter, Albert Coates, Leopold Stokowski, Eugene Ormandy, Alfred Wallenstein and other conductors have chosen Miss Beach as their soprano for the great Bach and Beethoven works with symphony orchestra.

Kathryn Hilgenberg will be contralto soloist this season, with Dan Lenoir Hosack appearing in the Mass as soloist of the "Laudamus Te." Russell Horton, tenor, will be in his usual place, but the leading tenor of the St. John Passion will be James Schwabacher, young California tenor who for the past three or more years has been attracting great attention in the bay area with his singing.

Ralph Isbell, Charles Goodwin, Don Hubler and Noel Sullivan will be bass baritone soloists. Ervin Mautner, whose playing last week as soloist with the San Francisco Symphony brought pleased comments from Pierre Monteux, will be violin soloist and concert master. Marian Davies is again announced as cello soloist, with Samuel Singer and Albert White as viola soloists. Floyd Stancliff and Patrice Kelly will be flutes, and Gabriel Bartold the solo trumpet.

Pianists include the "big four" of last year: Ralph Linsley, Maxim Schapiro, Randolph Hokanson and Charles Fulkerson. Ludwig Altman will again give the organ recitals, and the Heralding Trombones will precede the evening concerts, with Gordon, Alan and Donald Stewart and Donald Dean.

Alfred Frankenstein, distinguished music critic, will be lecturer.

Other soloists are still to be added to the artist list, and Mr. Usigli will engage them when he goes to Los Angeles this month.

A fashion show and display of period costumes from California's First Theater were featured Sunday when the Rancho Del Monte Country Club in Carmel Valley held its grand opening of the season. Guests sat in the sunlight about the swimming pool and watched the big doings while listening to appropriate music. Top photo, Miss Isabel Hartigan, Miss Carmel Mercante and Miss Barbara Glover provide striking contrasts in their costumes, as do Eileen McDermott and Dee Olivetti, who are seen in second photo, flanking Dene Denny and Hazel Watrous, managers of the First Theater in Monterey. The lady in the flowing white dress (from the Cinderella Shop, Carmel) is Joanne Nix, of Carmel. Getting a big kick out of the proceedings were Nancy and Patsy Porter, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Porter, in bottom photo, who modeled dresses from the Carmel Kiddie Shop. Polaroid One-Minute Photos.

PEASE MAKES ANOTHER APPEAL FOR INCREASED CANCER DRIVE FUNDS

An appeal for national support for the 1950 Cancer Crusade has just been made by Niles Pease, American Cancer Society campaign chairman, who said the fund drive was behind schedule.

"So far only a small percentage of what we have hoped for has been received," the chairman said.

"It appears that many people who intended to give have been slow to do so. Surveys have shown ACS officials that more than 80 percent of the people are willing to contribute to this drive."

"Only a small fraction of Monterey County residents have given," he said. "That is why we are convinced that the small returns to date are due to delay rather than disinclination to help the fight against cancer."

"Therefore, it has been decided to continue the campaign beyond the usual closing date, April 30, and we are asking everyone who has not yet made a contribution to do so immediately." Pease reminded that contributions can be mailed to "Cancer" in care of your local postmaster.

CALIFORNIA GOLF ASSOCIATION ELECTS
OFFICERS AT PEBBLE BEACH

The California Golf Association held its annual meeting at Del Monte Lodge, Pebble Beach, this weekend. John Clock, of Long Beach, was elected president of the organization; Don Edwards, Palo Alto, first vice president; John W. Dawson, Los Angeles, second vice president; George Johnson, Los Angeles, secretary-treasurer. Additional directors include Dell W. Griggs, Los Angeles; Dr. Robert G. Wallis, Sacramento; Chapin P. Hunt, San Francisco; Ralph H. Rebele, San Francisco; and Cliff Argue, Los Angeles.

John B. Morse, president of the Del Monte Properties Company, suggested that the association set the dates for the California Amateur Championship one week later this year in order to avoid conflict with the Monterey County Fair and Horse Show. The dates for the annual State Tournament will be Oct. 2-8, at Pebble Beach, Monterey Peninsula Country Club and Del Monte courses.

By Janine

Shoes, in France, are now back to their prewar quality. All during the German occupation, due to the lack of leather, shoe facories tried to make the best of a bad situation by widely advertising shoes with wooden soles that we jokingly called "the orthopedic shoes." We were joking...but buying...for they were the only ones to be had. I cannot say that we walked gracefully-but, "c'etait la guerre!" The only women who found any advantage in wearing them were the "pocket-size" women. At last they were able to read the names of the stations in the crowded Parisian metro! - The poor manufacturers really tried hard. We had cork soles; as you can imagine they were not strong enough and didn't last long. The synthetic rubber soles were by far the best, but alas! they were also strictly rationed. Aside from our pair-every-6-months allowed, there was nothing but wooden-sole shoes...or black-market shoes at prohibitive prices. So you can understand that when the good all-leather shoes reappeared, women went wild. For every pair of shoes there were fifty ardent buyers!

I was surprised, when I arrived in the United States, to see a lot of platform sole shoes. They are definitely out of style, not only in France, but in all the other European countries. The Italians, who are admired for their workmanship on shoes, are now displaying, in Paris, fine examples of their art in a few "custom made shoe" booteries situated around the Champs-Elysees and Rue de la Paix. Their shoes are out of this world and...out of reach for many a budget. A really fine pair of shoes, on measure and all hand sewn, costs from $50 to $100.

While in the morning walking shoes are a "must" in Paris, whether you go shopping or strolling in the fashionable Bois de Boulogne, in the afternoon and evening, of course, shoes are reduced to a bare minimum: narrow straps, cords and cut-out effects. Suedes, in all shades, predominate.

There is one thing I have not got used to yet: the size of American sheets. I certainly miss the big old fashioned French ones that are 3 metres 20 (10½ feet) long and 2 metres 40 (8 feet) wide. I would like to know the reason why we keep on making skimpy sheets. After all, beds here are as wide as anywhere else.

The silk lipstick, that is, the lipstick made with silk, appeared on the market in France two years ago. It was sold by a Swiss company which, between one day and the next, became known all over Paris. They sold not only silk lipstick but silk powder, one of the finest products I ever had. A well known American beauty house has bought the process and is advertising in the papers now. I am glad because my supply of silk lipstick is getting very, very low.

Mrs. Mildred (Babe) Didrikson Zaharias (see cover) won the first leg of the $17,000 Weathervane Women's Open Championship with a 36-hole total of 158 on the tough Pebble Beach course. The young ladies above did all right too. Left, the famous Alice Bauer (her sister, Marlene, was out of the match due to a throat infection), came in with 171 total. Alice had trouble on the 18th hole and is seen here blasting off the seawall which borders the fairway. At right, greeting Alvin Handmacher, sponsor of the fabulous tournament, is Mrs. Bettye Mims Danoff, of Dallas, who carded a 169 on the Pebble Beach stretch. Photos by JULIAN P. GRAHAM.

NCCW Hears Bishop Willinger

Urging his audience to combat the "growing force of atheistic secularism in America," Bishop Aloysius J. Willinger, C.Ss.R.D.D., of Monterey-Fresno Diocese, during a luncheon meeting Monday at the La Playa Hotel spoke to members of the National Council of Catholic Women, who held their 20th annual diocesan convention in Carmel on Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Bishop Willinger, whose topic was "Catholic Women in the World of Today," said the fight to preserve Christianity in the United States grows more serious each year. Our democracy is based upon trust in God, the bishop said, yet "we Americans flaunt a higher percentage of irreligion, crime and delinquency than any other people," he warned.

"Popular fads run rampant with no consideration of moral values," said Bishop Willinger, who expressed his fear of the increasingly tolerant attitude Americans have toward such acts as sterilization and mercy killings. This attitude, which has been subjected to the indulgence of juries and judges in recent mercy killing cases, is but the stage setting for future legislation, he stated.

Asking Catholic women to aid in the fight against secularism in the United States, the bishop declared, "Where Christ is King, there is no danger to democracy."

Following their registration Saturday morning at the Pine Inn, women of the council toured the Carmelite Monastery, under the guidance of Noel Sullivan, and Carmel Mission, led by Harry Downie, Mass, business sessions and presentation of Diocesan President Mrs. Agnes Jehl, of Watsonville, by president of Monterey Deanery, Mrs. Irene Sieve, of Pacific Grove, highlighted the Sunday events, while the banquet Sunday night featured speeches by Monsignor William Burke and the Reverend Michael D. O'Connell, of Carmel Mission, and installation of officers for the coming year.

New officers are Mary Dorney, of Monterey, president; Jeanette Jacobs, of Hanford, first vice president; Pierina Sawyer, of San Luis Obispo, recording secretary; Marie Finnie, of Santa Cruz, treasurer, and Frances Logan, of Fresno, auditor.

Chairmen for the three-day affair included Mrs. Sieve, Mrs. Dorney, Mrs. John Reardan, Mrs. Geneva de Board, Mrs. M. Carey, Mrs. Joseph McClosky, Mrs. Hugo Futterer and Mrs. George Fortier.

TO REPRESENT ST. JAMES AUXILIARY AT PASO ROBLES

Mrs. William Hales, of Carmel, and Mrs. Edith Vout, of Monterey, were chosen as delegates to the Paso Robles Convocation Convention in May during the last meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of St. James Episcopal Church, which met at the home of Mrs. A. S. Fowler, of Monterey. Alternates to the convention are Mrs. R. F. Peace, of Pacific Grove, and Mrs. Lee Hamlin, of Monterey.

During last week's auxiliary meeting, Mrs. Hales, chairman of supply, collected the remnants of cotton that ladies had brought to be sent to the Indian mission at Nogales, Arizona. She requested that persons who have clothes which could be sent to the Episcopal Mission in Japan contact her at 7-4886.

"OVER THE HILLS"
CLOSES MAY 20
AT FIRST THEATER

Only three weekends remain for performances of "Over the Hills to the Poorhouse" at California's First Theater in Monterey. May 20 will mark the final showing, "The Unkissed Bride" opening the following week.

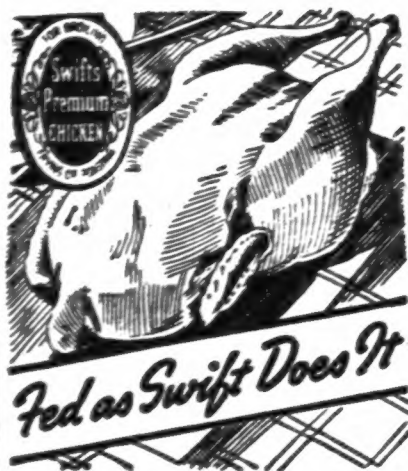

Rhea Diveley, director of "Over the Hills," will also direct "The Bride," which she is already rehearsing.

ANSWER TO THE WEEK'SWHO IS IT?

Robert W. Johnson, secretary-manager of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce, is featured in this week's "Who Is It?" With the work he does, Mr. Johnson couldn't help but be a peninsula booster - and he's been a rabid one ever since first sighting the local scenery through the courtesy of the U.S. Army infantry. Born in 1914 in Paducah, Kentucky, Mr. Johnson was employed in a sales capacity for the National Cash Register Company prior to World War II. He spent four years in the Army and, while at Fort Ord, decided to stay on the peninsula. Starting out by working for the Salinas Chamber of Commerce, he did a short hitch in the same work in Sacramento, but returned to Monterey in 1949. He resides here with his wife, Caroline, and son, Robert Junior, who is four years old. Mr. Johnson is a member of Monterey Kiwanis, the American Chamber of Commerce Executives and California Association of C of C Managers. He is shy about admitting it, but he doesn't play golf.

Our Garden

Everyone in Carmel knows the summer and fall splendor of Maurice Hanssen's tuberous begonia gardens, strategically located as they are, just a few steps north of the Post Office, and right across Dolores Street from the Carmel Art Association Gallery!

Begonia's seem to love the Monterey Peninsula, as do camellias, and, like camellias, they owe their discovery to a Roman Catholic Padre, Father Hernandez, although credit has gone to Botanist Charles Plumier, who named them (around 1690) in honor of Michel Begon, then Governor of Santa Domingo.

The tuberous begonia's that we know today, however, are the results of hybridization, begun in England and on the Continent, and continued in the United States, after the Quarantine Act of 1910 prohibited further imports. To Northern California fell the distinction of heading the list of commercial growers, a leadership maintained ever since.

Begonia Culture

Gardeners inexperienced in begonia culture should begin, I believe, with seedling plants purchased from local nurseries, although larger plants and blooms may be obtained from bulbs. Bulbs should be started now, in flats of Vermiculite, peat moss, or oak leaf mold, (with the addition of bone meal), and when sufficient root systems have formed, the tubers may be transplanted into the ground or pots.

Begonia's are shade-loving plants, although, on the Monterey Peninsula, they will grow in full sun. It is very important that the soil mix in which they are planted, is very light in texture and perfect in drainage. The beds or pots should be kept moist. Overhead watering is to be avoided, except for occasional mist sprayings.

Begonia's are great imitators. There are camellia, carnation, rose and hollyhock types of blossoms. The camellia type is the most popular, because of its perfect form. The picotee-type begonia is a camellia type blossom, with variations of color, along the margins of the petal. This is the type of begonia used most widely by florists for corsages and floral decor.

summer and fall is perhaps the most elaborate, offering as it does, tier upon tier of gorgeous blooms, arranged under the artistic eye of Sydney Stein Rich, head gardener of the Park, who began as a hard-working apprentice under beloved John Mac Laren some twenty years ago. Visitors from all over the globe have come to admire the "Perennial Garden" technique of this Conservatory, situated as it is, near the main drive of the Park, and fashioned after the great Crystal Palace of the Victorian era's World Exposition in London.

GIRLS' STATE CONFERENCE DELEGATE CHOSEN BY CARMEL AUXILIARY

Linda Bain, 16, of Carmel, has been chosen by the local American Legion Auxiliary to represent Carmel at the Girls' State Conference in Sacramento, June 21-29. Linda was selected on the basis of scholarship and leadership from the junior class at the Carmel High School.

In Sacramento she will learn the operations of city, county and state governments as girls from all over California learn to govern Sacramento as a "state" and sections of that city as "cities" and "counties."

Linda, who said this week that she was "delighted and grateful" that she had been chosen for the honor, has maintained an A minus average throughout high school. She belongs to the California Scholarship Federation, Junior Red Cross, Girls' Athletic Association, French Club and Latin Club.

194 SIGN PETITION from Page 3 crossing be provided by the city.

Camino Del Monte, which winds down from the top of the hill at Route 1, eventually becoming San Carlos Street, was the subject of much discussion by the council last year. In order to protect school children, the city fathers decided to remove signs directing visitors to Carmel by that route. The removal of the signs lost a lot of business for people who depended on the traffic.

Phil Wilson, speaking for the owner of the McPhillips Hotel, claimed the San Carlos Street inn lost $2,000 last year as a result of the sign being changed. Other business people gave similar testimony Wednesday night.

Ironically, and with this the parents evidently agreed, it hasn't been the tourists who endanger Carmel school children. Localites, familiar with the turns and grades of Camino Del Monte, were speeding much too fast past school zones. The street still isn't safe, business people claimed, and business had dropped for no good reason.

Councilman Andy Martin, with 25 years experience on the State Highway Patrol, said: "Time has shown that the sign changes have not made the street safe." He also referred to the "bottleneck" at the bottom of the Ocean Avenue hill, which takes the greatest amount of traffic now - at least, tourist traffic.

"We don't want to prejudice any certain business section," Donald Craig declared, "but we want maximum safety for children."

After talking it over for a while, the council agreed to meet with two representatives of the petitioning body and try to work out a solution. Everyone knew how one councilman felt already. Gene Ricketts had signed the petition.

In other business, the council set a public hearing, 7:45 p.m., June 7, at the City Hall, for an appeal by Harold Brown on the recent Planning Commission decision that he should not be permitted to lodge more than four paying guests at Stone House.

Moffatt, did a quiet, competent job, which became increasingly better as the show went on. Jeanie Dam deserves second mention for her Lorelei characterization of Bessie Watty, which brought a spontaneous salvo of applause from the audience after her dramatic exit. Eugene W. Bayol, Jr., made an appealing and convincing Morgan Evans, while Jean Daniels as Miss Ronberry was competent and consistent. Maxwell Carson was Squire Traverby to the bottom of his plus-fours.

Katie Ruster didn't miss a trick in pulling a laugh on every line as Mrs. Watty, this being one of the best bits of casting in the show. In spite of his fine singing voice, Philip Oberg as John Goron-

JACKSON TELLS ABOUT LARGE NEW AUDITORIUM

In a radio talk over Station KDON on Tuesday, Corum B. Jackson, of Carmel, vice president of the Monterey County Fair, told the public that the long sought auditorium for fair exhibits and offices will probably be built this Summer. He mentioned that Fair Manager Fred McCarger is in Sacramento now and that the State of California is expected to put up $75,000 of the funds needed for the $150,000 structure.

The building will be available for peninsula civic affairs, Mr. Jackson told The SPECTATOR later, and for basketball games and the like. The $150,000 to be spent on the new building would buy enough room for 50 fair exhibits, new offices and a new entrance to the Fairgrounds.

"We've been a year trying to get it going," Mr. Jackson said, "and we hope to have the main building for the fair exhibits erected in time for the new fair on Sept. 28."

Other speakers on last week's broadcast were George V. Yates, of Carmel, who heads the annual Flower Show of the Monterey County Fair, and John B. Morse, of Pebble Beach, who supervises the Horse Show this year.

wy Jones seemed to have a little trouble with diction in his straight acting role. At the same time, the dialect assignments were handled extremely well in supporting parts by Kurt Von Meier and Dee Sharpe, while a vigorous bit of by play was contributed by the young miners represented by Sylvester Burger Christopher Barnes, Kenneth Wightman and William Abbe, Jr. Cecil "Pop" Smith and Cynthia Bisswell were adequate as Old Tom and Mrs. Pugh.

The overall timing and direction of the play was workmanlike and extremely competent. If this play is a fair sample of their work, we look forward to future productions of Forrest Barnes and the Theater Guild. R. S.
